PRESS NOTICES

OF THE

JOURNAL OF POLITICAL ECONOMY.

Chicago "Inter Ocean."

"Fresh, bright and original, and full-freighted with information of scientific and economic value, the first number of The Journal of Political Economy comes from the University Press of Chicago. . . . It is printed on heavy toned paper, and is typographically as neat and attractive as any of the great monthly or quarterly magazines. . . . The Journal of Political Economy has only to fulfil the promise of its birth to be of very great usefulness. . . . The University is to be congratulated upon the auspicious beginning of its proposed series of Journals."

The "Nation," New York.

"Economic periodicals have so multiplied of recent years that it is impossible to extend an altogether cordial welcome to any addition to their number, but it is no more than just to say that the Journal of Political Economy, which makes its first appearance this month from the press of the University of Chicago, takes rank at once with the best of the existing reviews."

Chicago "Herald."

"The table of contents gives promise of the great value the work will have for all students and investigators. . . . It is a periodical of great promise."

"Boston Journal."

"The periodical is a handsome one, comparing favorably with those which are now issued on similar lines by Harvard, Yale and Columbia. . . . The Journal of Political Economy is fortunate in its selection. That chosen is a line of work which calls for special attention in this country. . . . The American student of political economy has a brilliant opportunity."

Cleveland "Examiner."

"Chicago is looming up in quite a formidable way as a rival to New York and Boston in a literary way. . . . The new University of Chicago has entered the field with a 'Journal of Political Economy' from its own press."

Quarterly Journal of Economics. (Harvard.)

"The first number of the Journal of Political Economy, published by the University of Chicago, edited by Professor J. Laurence Laughlin, appeared in December. . . . Notes and a select list of book reviews make up an attractive table of contents.

"The result of Professor Laughlin's survey of the recent progress of economic study in this country is a clear recognition of the peace which has been declared between the two bodies of economists who stood opposed to each other a few years ago, and an emphatic statement of the opportunities which our material conditions afford for extensive and valuable investigation."
